I assume you have read the camera instruction manual and have taken and processed a few terrestrial pictures with it, and that you are familiar with the basics of piggyback astrophotography (putting your camera on the back of a telescope to track the stars). For basic astrophotography information, see also Canon's DSLR astrophotography site. This page will be more specific than that one.

How do you follow a classic? That's the question Canon faced when it got to work producing a successor to the EOS 5D. The original 5D was the first 'affordable' and lightweight (in relative terms) full frame camera, and set a standard for low noise at high ISO settings that remains competitive three years later.
